Joseph DeLappe is a Professor of the Department of Art at the University of Nevada where he directs the Digital Media program. Working with electronic and new media since 1983, his work in online gaming performance, sculpture and electromechanical installation have been shown throughout the United States and abroad - including exhibitions and performances in Australia, the United Kingdom, China, Germany, Spain, Belgium, the Netherlands and Canada. Joseph DeLappe is one of eleven participating artists in Broadway Augmented, an innovative temporary public art project to be produced in fall, 2014. Broadway Augmented employs cutting edge technology to create virtual public artworks in one of Sacramento's most eclectic transitional neighborhoods.
